

All in the Details
Testimonial 2

September 6, 2006

Last year, I relocated my office space to a new room and worked with Patti and Ann Marie from All in the Details to breathe some new life into my office setting, which was a challenge indeed with a strange carpet color, existing upholstered chairs, and heavy, dark, traditional office furniture.

They worked closely with me in picking out a wall color that would work well with the lighting, both natural and artificial, in the room as well as with the carpeting and upholstery pattern and with my general ideas about the mood I wanted to create. They presented fabric and drapery ideas I never would have thought of but really liked, and arranged all the details of creating and hanging the drapes. We worked together to pick out furniture that served my workspace needs but made me feel comfortable and at home in the room. The furniture and placement opened up space so that the room actually felt larger than it had ever seemed before, regardless of who had occupied the space. Finally, Patti had her eye out for me when she was shopping for some other fabric and found a trim that matched the curtain fabric but was just a little different so that coordinated pillows were perfect accents. When the room was finished, it “popped” with the color and details I loved. My colleagues continue to remark about the good work. It really was all in the details.

I have worked in this space for approximately a year now, and I continue to feel like the room is a “breath of fresh air” when I come in each morning. I am comfortable, focused, and at home. I would highly recommend using All in the Details for any home or office decorating project.
